2. In Module 6—and in the other modules of this course—you've seen some of the pros and cons of technological change. For example, on the plus side, change can make our lives easier, eliminating much of the back-breaking work of previous ages. On the negative side, on the other hand, technological innovations can throw people out of work.

   Your last assignment is to write a position paper on this issue:

   Should technological change be restricted?

   As you prepare your paper, follow these steps:

   - Brainstorm, listing as many pros and cons as you can think of.
   - Choose a side—for or against—and prepare an outline of your paper.
   - Write a rough draft of your paper using examples or information from this module—or from elsewhere—to defend your position.
   - Write your finished draft.
